The collage features a purple and brown brick wall background. In the center is a newspaper clipping from 'The INDEPENDENT' with the following content:

Did Hancock really pass the test?
The health secretary faces claims he fudged the rules to hit his 100,000 daily tests target

Coronavirus deaths twice as high in poorest areas
Most deprived parts of London suffer worst tolls, figures reveal

At the top of the newspaper clipping are four small portraits with names and headlines:

- Lynda Thomas: There's another big C we cannot forget
- Patrick Cockburn: Trump's new cold war against China
- Janet Street Porter: Easing lockdown has to apply to us all
- Shappi Khorsandi: Staying in means fewer irritations

To the right of the newspaper clipping is a cartoon illustration of a character with a white face and orange body, wearing a sign that says '3-8', standing in front of a yellow background with black vertical lines.
